

Perimeter Casings from Jtech Services

The Perimeter Casing System from Jtech Services were recently chosen for the refurbishment of a University Physics Department.

Following the installation of the mechanical and electrical services package, Jtech Services installed their casing system within the agreed time frame allowing the floor layers to follow on with a couple of days in hand.

The advantage of the Perimeter Casing System is that, not only is it aesthetically pleasing, but it also practical in that it allows good access to the interior heating element for maintenance and cleaning, whilst maintaining outer security through its SKS locking mechanism.

To prepare for the successful install process a precise, site specific measure is taken before manufacture that allows for any restrictions such as internal pipework, valves, or ducting.

Whilst this project was finished in a standard white powder coat finish, Jtech Services can also offer their systems in a range of other colours that tie in with either new or existing décor.
