

Protective Radiator Guards from Jtech Services

Jtech Services has now been offering products and services for over twenty-five years and in that time has responded to customer requirements to develop new and innovative products.

The Radiator Guard has been a staple of our offer down through the years and has been developed to suit various types of situations, such as here in the young years area of a Public Library.

Jtech Services are confident in the products that they offer as they are tested by independent specialists to make sure that their offer is compliant with necessary regulations.

Recent testing to British Standards (BS EN 442-2:2014) by independent testing house BSRIA, of both the Standard Front Opening and the Anti-Ligature Front Opening styles of radiator guard, demonstrated that the guards provided by Jtech Services offer the appropriate protection that is required.

Complimenting their Radiator Guard & Pipe Boxing products, Jtech Services also offer a site measuring service for those difficult and awkward applications and an installation service should that be required.
