

Tailor Made Pipe Boxing from Jtech Services

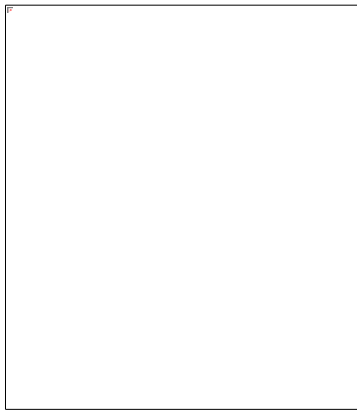

Jtech Services has been supplying Pipe Boxing and other enclosure systems for more than two decades and so has built up a lot of experience in resolving complex applications.

Our process is quite simple, having discussed a given application with the client and ascertained their requirements, Jtech Services then sets about designing and manufacturing a suitable product.

More often than not our clients prefer to install the products themselves, but we do not want to just deliver a pallet of goods on site and leave it to the installers, Jtech Services will help with layout and talk through any points that need to be clarified.

Some elements require very specific and precise cutouts to enable easy fitment. In some cases the products can be tried in place on site before powder coating to confirm that installation will not be a problem.

At Jtech Services we know that this finishing aspect of a project is very important as it is what the client sees and forms a judgement on and so we work closely with designers, architects and installers to make sure that they get the best results.
