

2014 Industry wishes – The Manufacturer

2014 is a landmark year for SIC Ltd, not only does it mark a half-century of business but also the opportunity to build on our recent success throughout the UK manufacturing sector.

We are optimistic for the year ahead for many reasons and over the coming months we anticipate a number of developments in the industries involved with electrical contract manufacturing. The cost and more importantly risk of outsourcing electrical manufacturing overseas is increasingly outweighing the benefits, encouraging more manufacturing to return to the UK and as a proud UK manufacturer we're looking forward to helping more businesses with their electrical manufacturing needs.

Coupled with increased manufacturing within the UK we're looking forward to growth in some of the exciting and dynamic sectors that we operate in such as medical products, aerospace, rail and automotive, as we see UK investment increase to provide the platform for innovation and new technology driving product development forward. These growing markets will provide significant opportunity for us to supply our electrical manufacturing solutions to a more diverse range of applications.

Lastly, we hope to see the continued overall growth of UK manufacturing in line with current predictions and a return to the days when 'made in the UK' gave peace of mind and was synonymous with the highest levels of quality and manufacturing excellence.
