

SIC Ltd debut at Medtec 2014

SIC Ltd, one of the UK's leading wiring harness, cable assembly, panel wiring and box build manufacturers is celebrating after an extremely successful debut at Medtec 2014. The exhibition, which is the UK's definitive medical manufacturing event, was a perfect fit for SIC who have a proud history of manufacturing wiring assemblies used within the medical industry.

Held over two days at Olympia in London, the event brought together some of the biggest names in the medical technology and provided a fantastic platform to showcase the level of manufacturing excellence that SIC bring to all products and capabilities. The show was a huge success and the interest in SIC's products and services has helped strengthen relationships with a number of key customers as well introducing a variety of new people within this developing sector to the manufacturing solutions that SIC can provide.

We were delighted at the amount of interest our stand generated; commented Phil Hurlow, Technical Director. We displayed a number of our custom manufactured wiring harnesses and box build assemblies which allowed people to see the professionalism and precision that goes into our work. The quality of our products really is second to none – whether it's control panels, wiring harnesses or a complete box build. It was very rewarding for us to see how impressed visitors to the stand were with the SIC level of manufacturing excellence.
