

Stone and Ceramics

Combined Safety solutions work very closely to a stone and ceramics company who are involved in a lot of tier 1 projects throughout London. Combined Safety Solutions' role within this company is to conduct all of the Health and Safety audits for the company as well as helping to conduct a safe working environment.

The company have recently completed a project in the heart of London where contrasting tiles were used to create a beautiful seating area. When working with the company on this job, we would conduct regular health and safety visits to this site to make sure Arena are maintaining the H&S standards. Due to the job being safe. Having all the correct regulations and procedures on site have helped to maintain the quality of work and how the efficiency of the job is completed.

This company regularly requested training and toolbox talks throughout this project to ensure that all operatives were up to date with regulations set and making sure their knowledge is put into practice within the work place.
